

THE ELEPHANT AND THE TUSK

Once upon a time a white colored beautiful baby elephant was born...

What a beautiful child!

He looks divine.

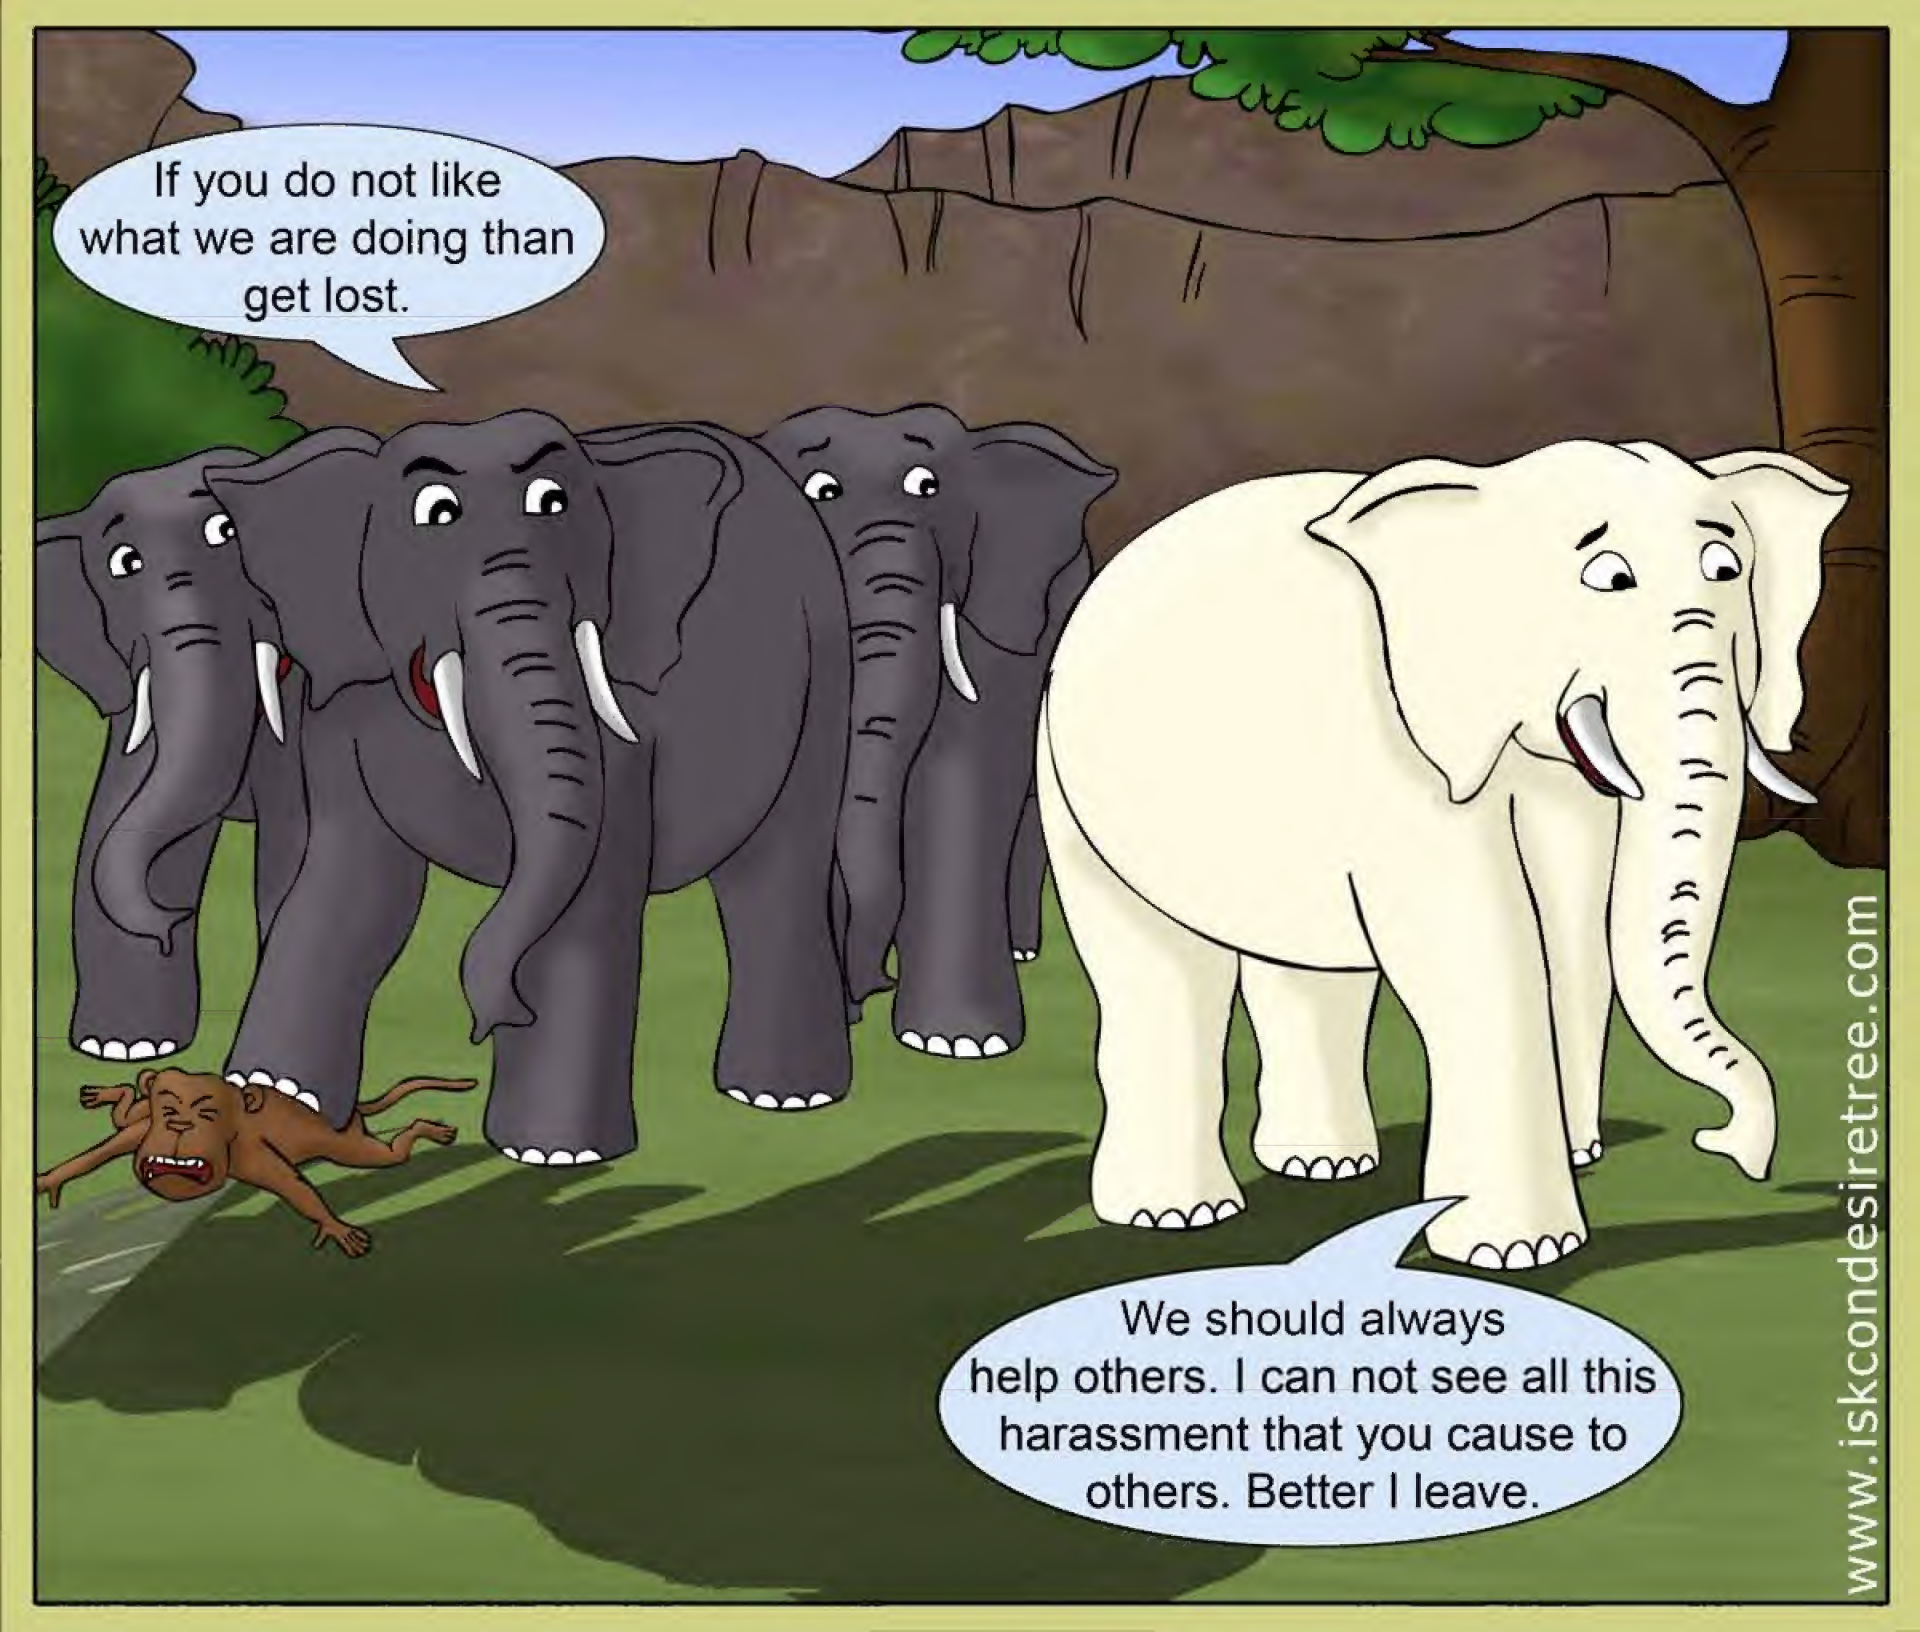

Soon the baby elephant grew up. He was different from the other elephants. He did not like to disturb the other animals of the jungle.

Stop! Please do not harass the weaker animals.

If you do not like what we are doing than get lost.

We should always help others. I can not see all this harassment that you cause to others. Better I leave.

The white elephant was always friendly with everyone.
He always helped others in their times of difficulties.

One day a forester lost his way....

It is becoming dark &
I have lost the way out. If I do not find the way out of this dense jungle,
I may die.

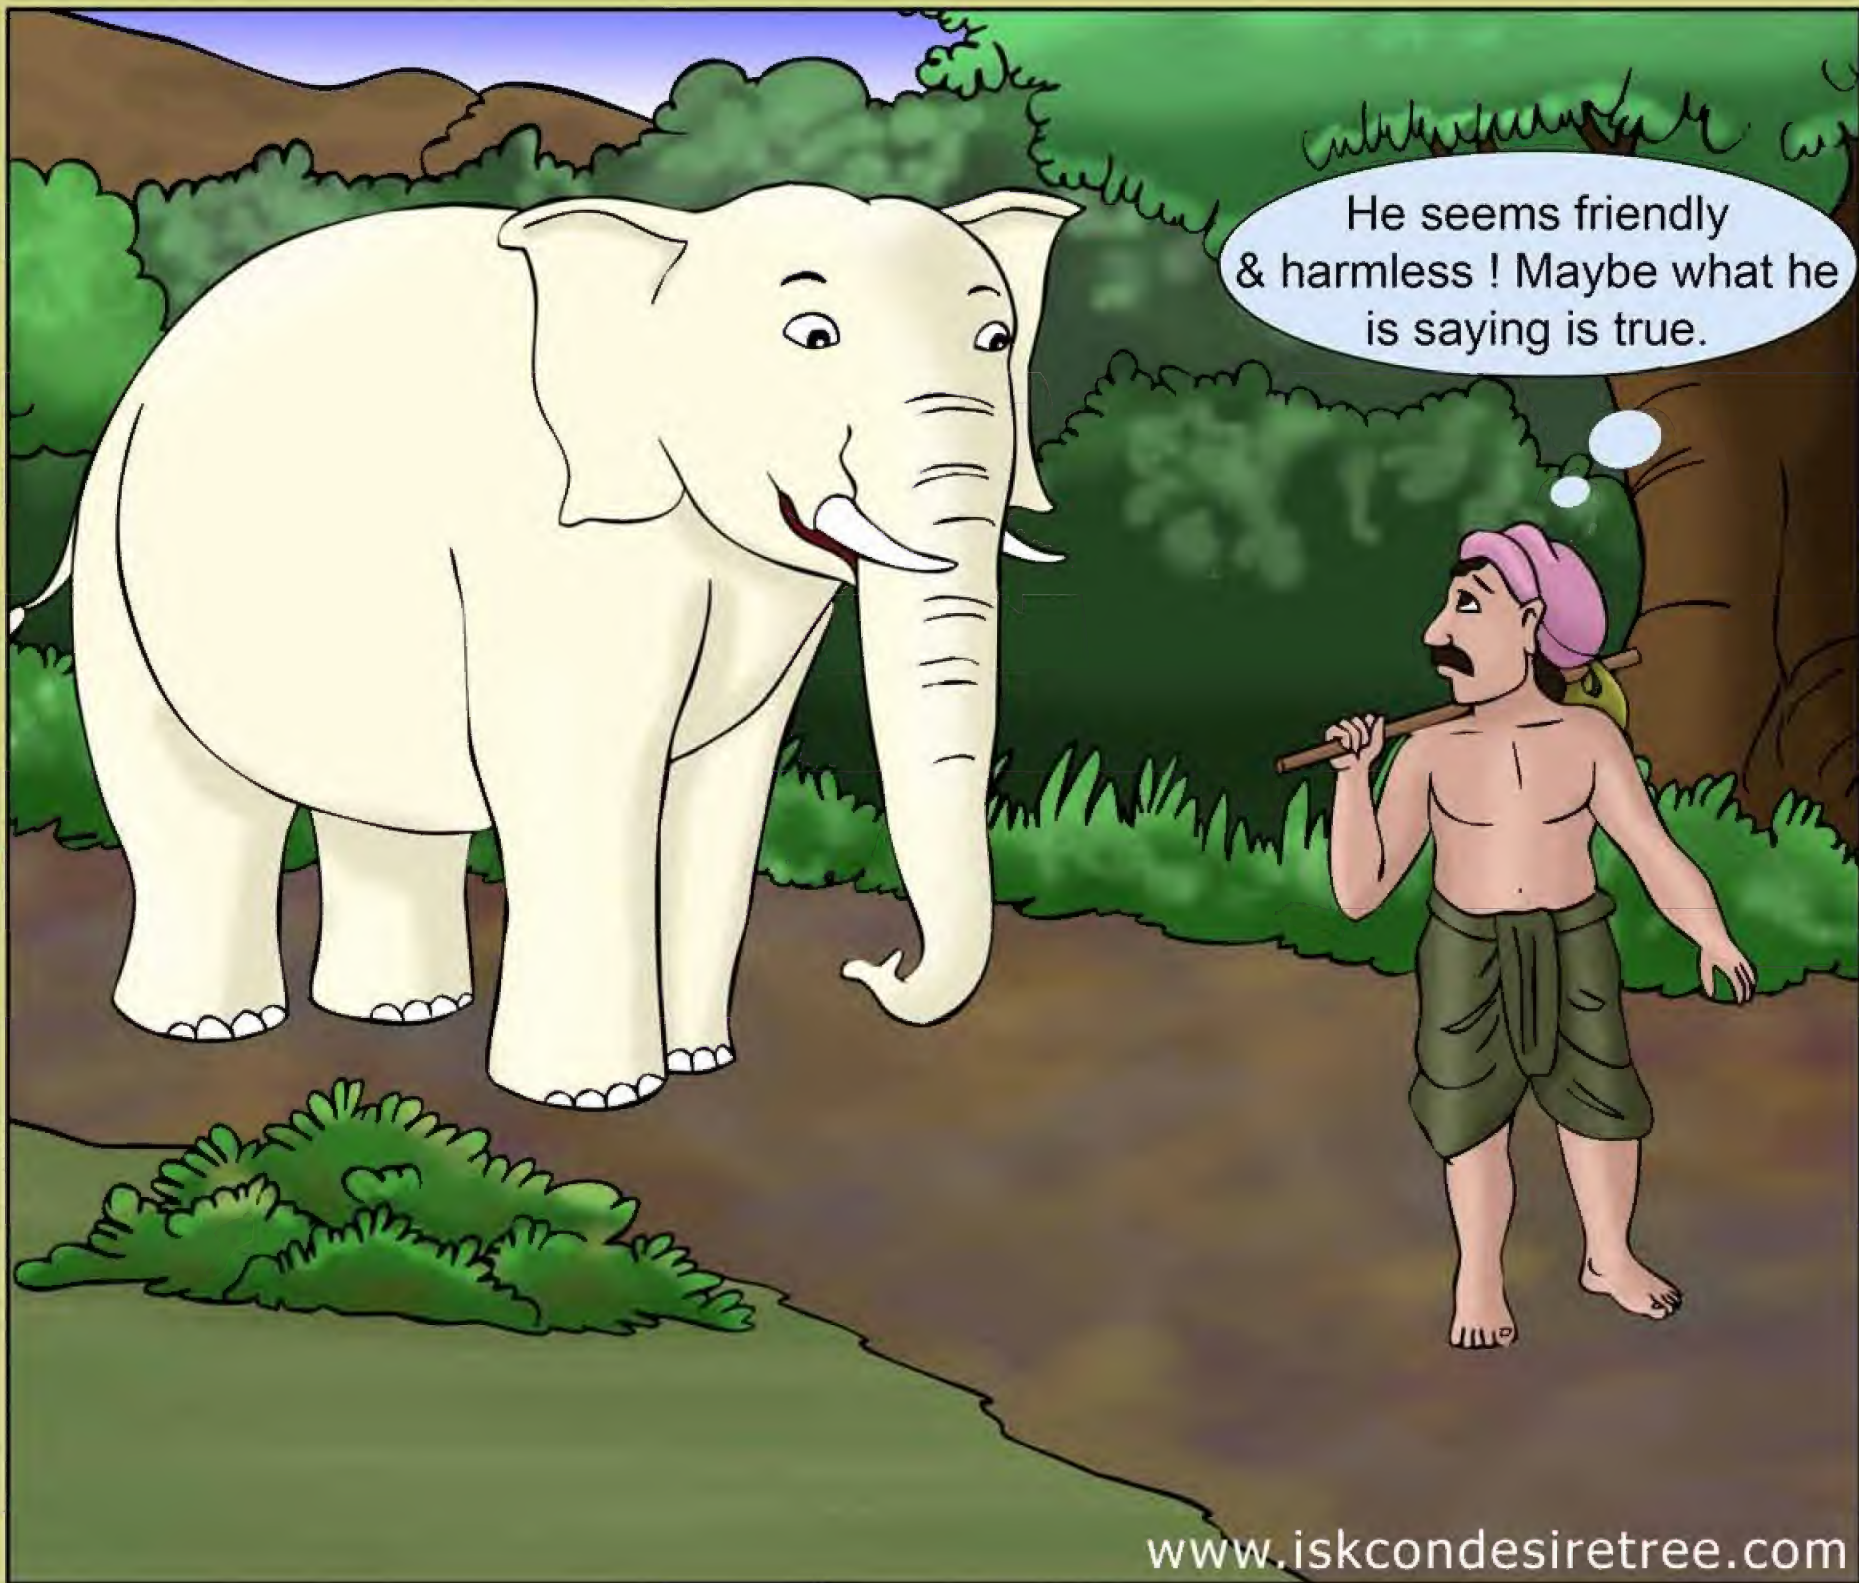

Suddenly he saw the white elephant coming towards him...

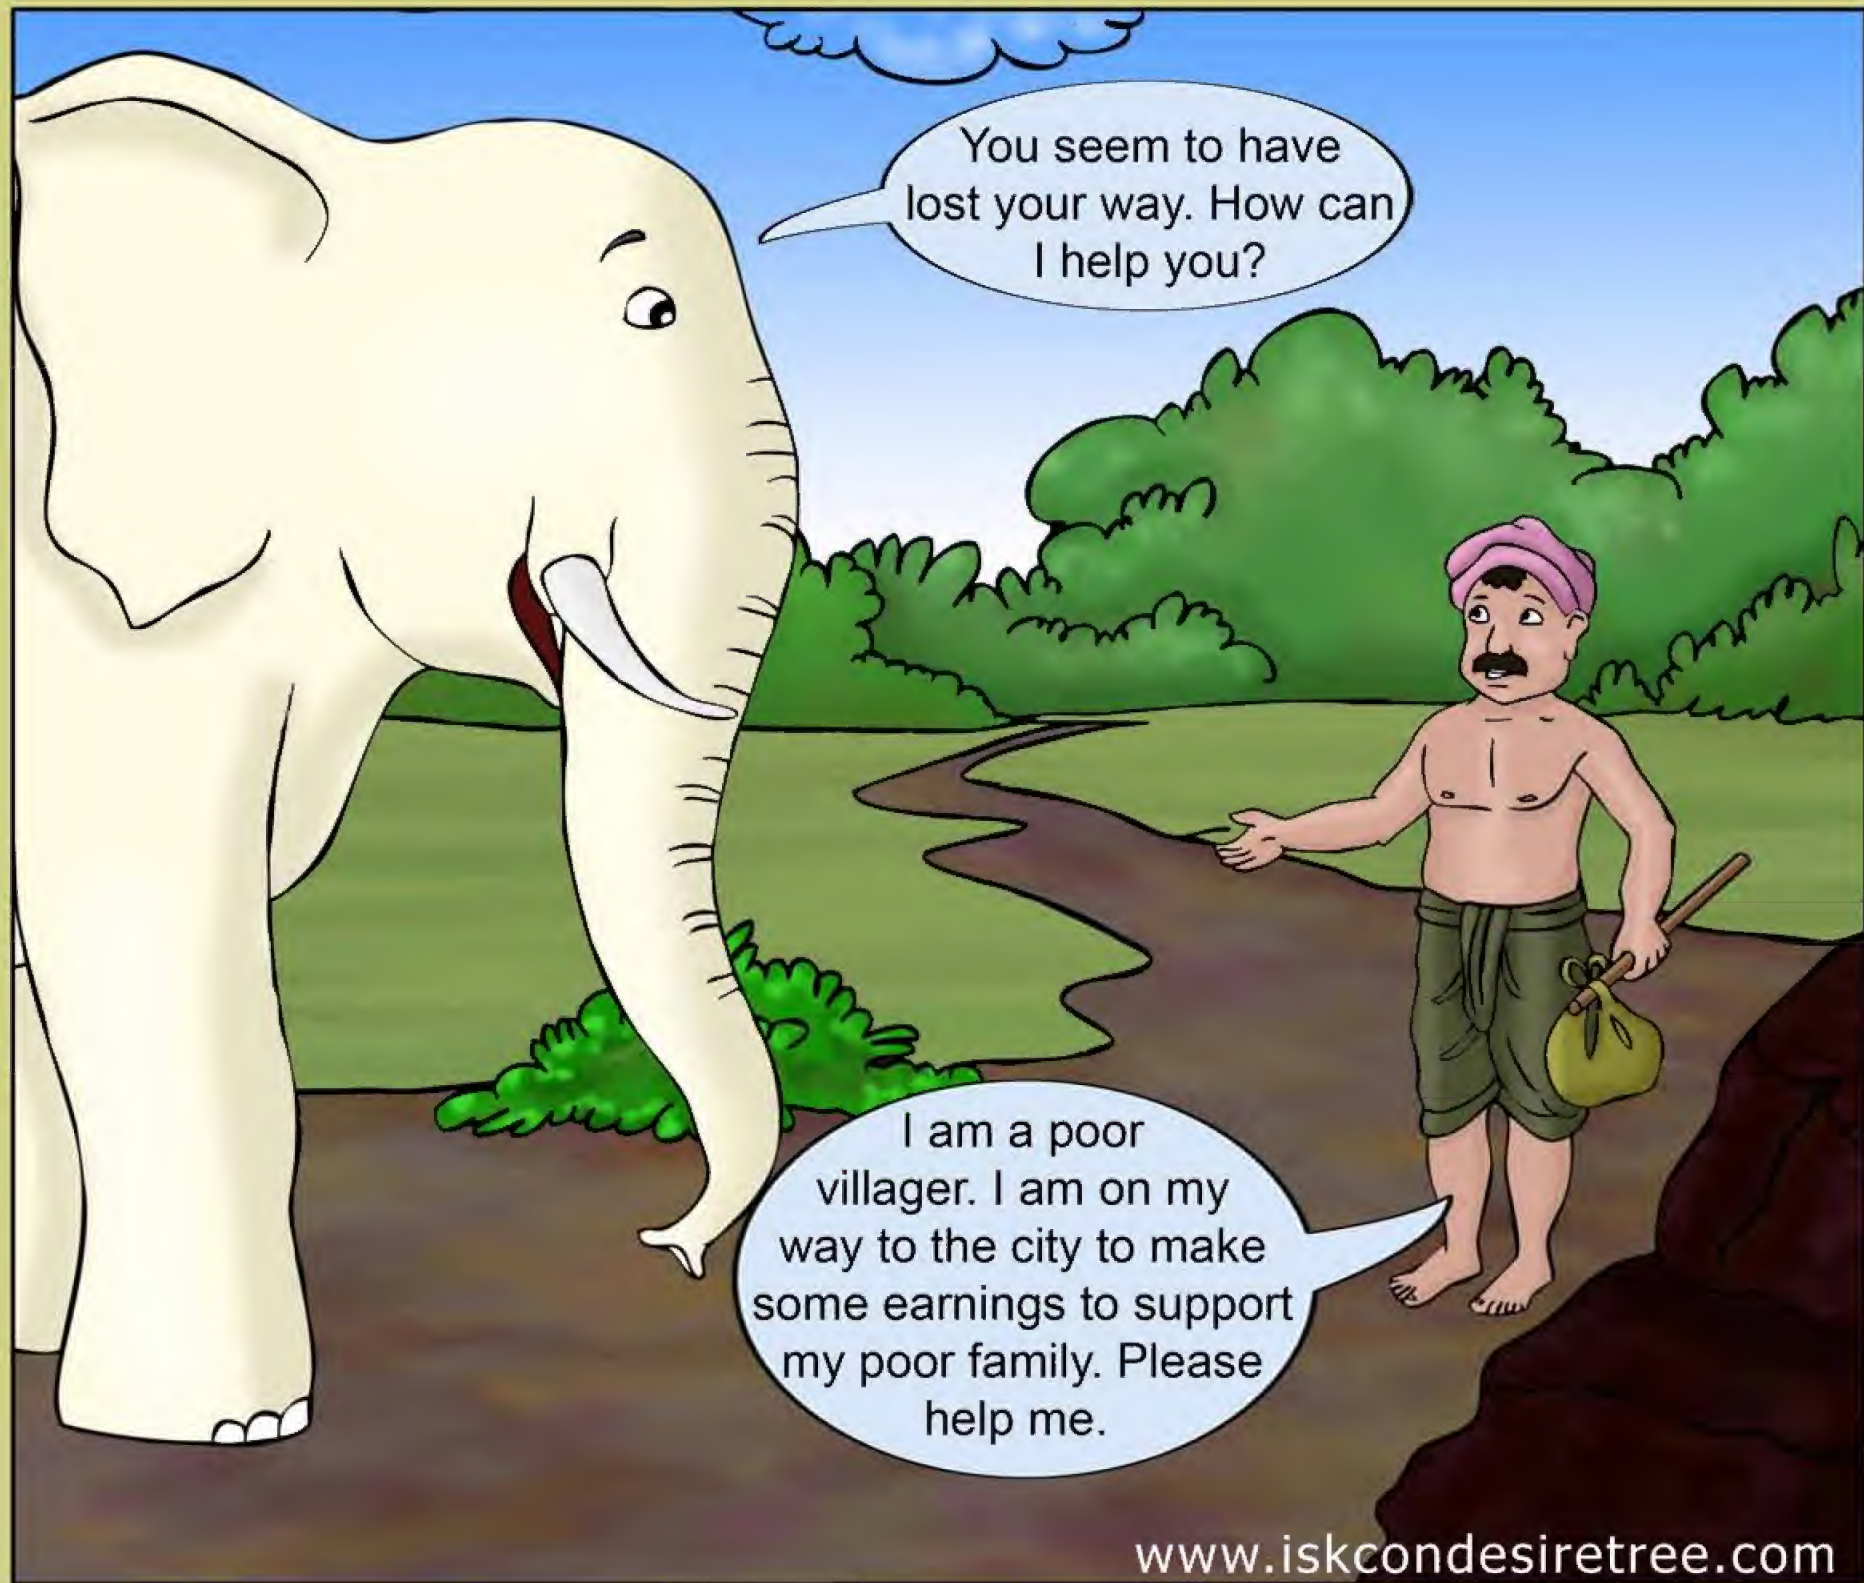

My God!
Please help me! My death is near!

Wait! Wait! Do
not run in that direction.
You are going deeper in the forest.

You seem to have lost your way. How can I help you?

I am a poor villager. I am on my way to the city to make some earnings to support my poor family. Please help me.

Please do not worry. The sun will soon set and it will become dark. Stay with me. Tomorrow I shall drop you on the right path.

The elephant took him to a safe cave. Very soon they both became friends.

Please eat this delicious fruits and take rest.

The next day, the elephant showed him the way of the city.

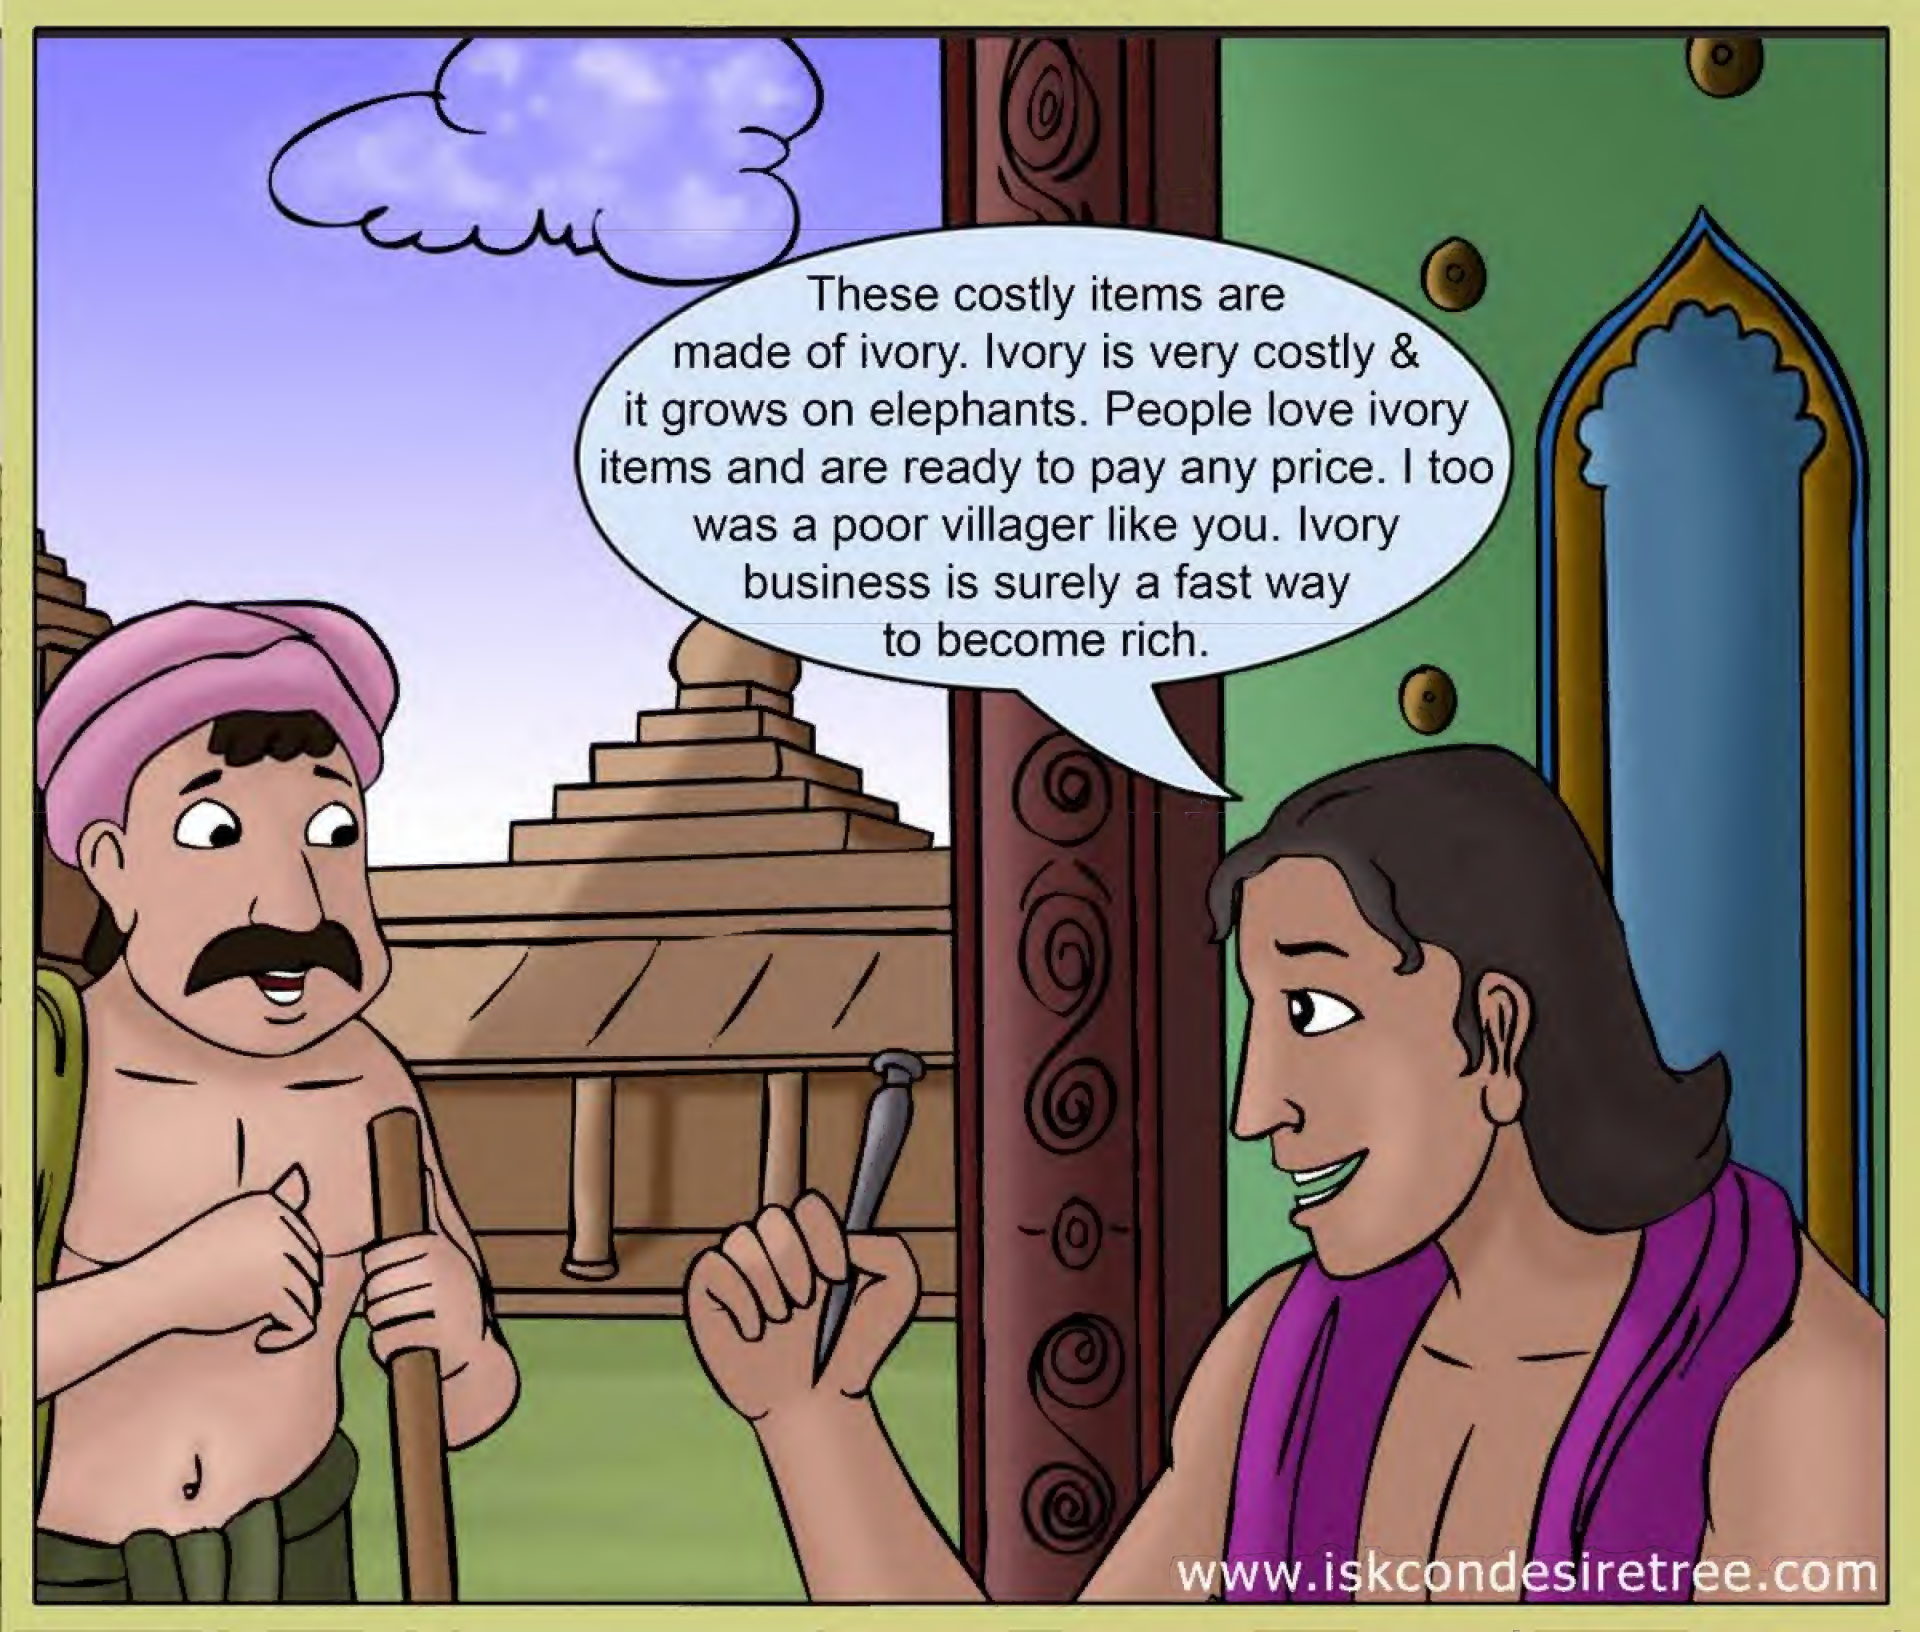

He came to the city looking for ways to become rich. He saw an ivory artist...

You are selling the costliest items in the town. What are these items made from?

These costly items are made of ivory. Ivory is very costly & it grows on elephants. People love ivory items and are ready to pay any price. I too was a poor villager like you. Ivory business is surely a fast way to become rich.

I have seen an elephant with ivory in the jungle.

Many have lost their lives in trying to get ivory from the deep jungles. Hence it is the most costliest item.

The white elephant was very helpful. Let me go back to the jungle and talk to him. If he gives me even a small part of his tusks, I can relive myself of all the debts and thus alleviate my family's miseries.

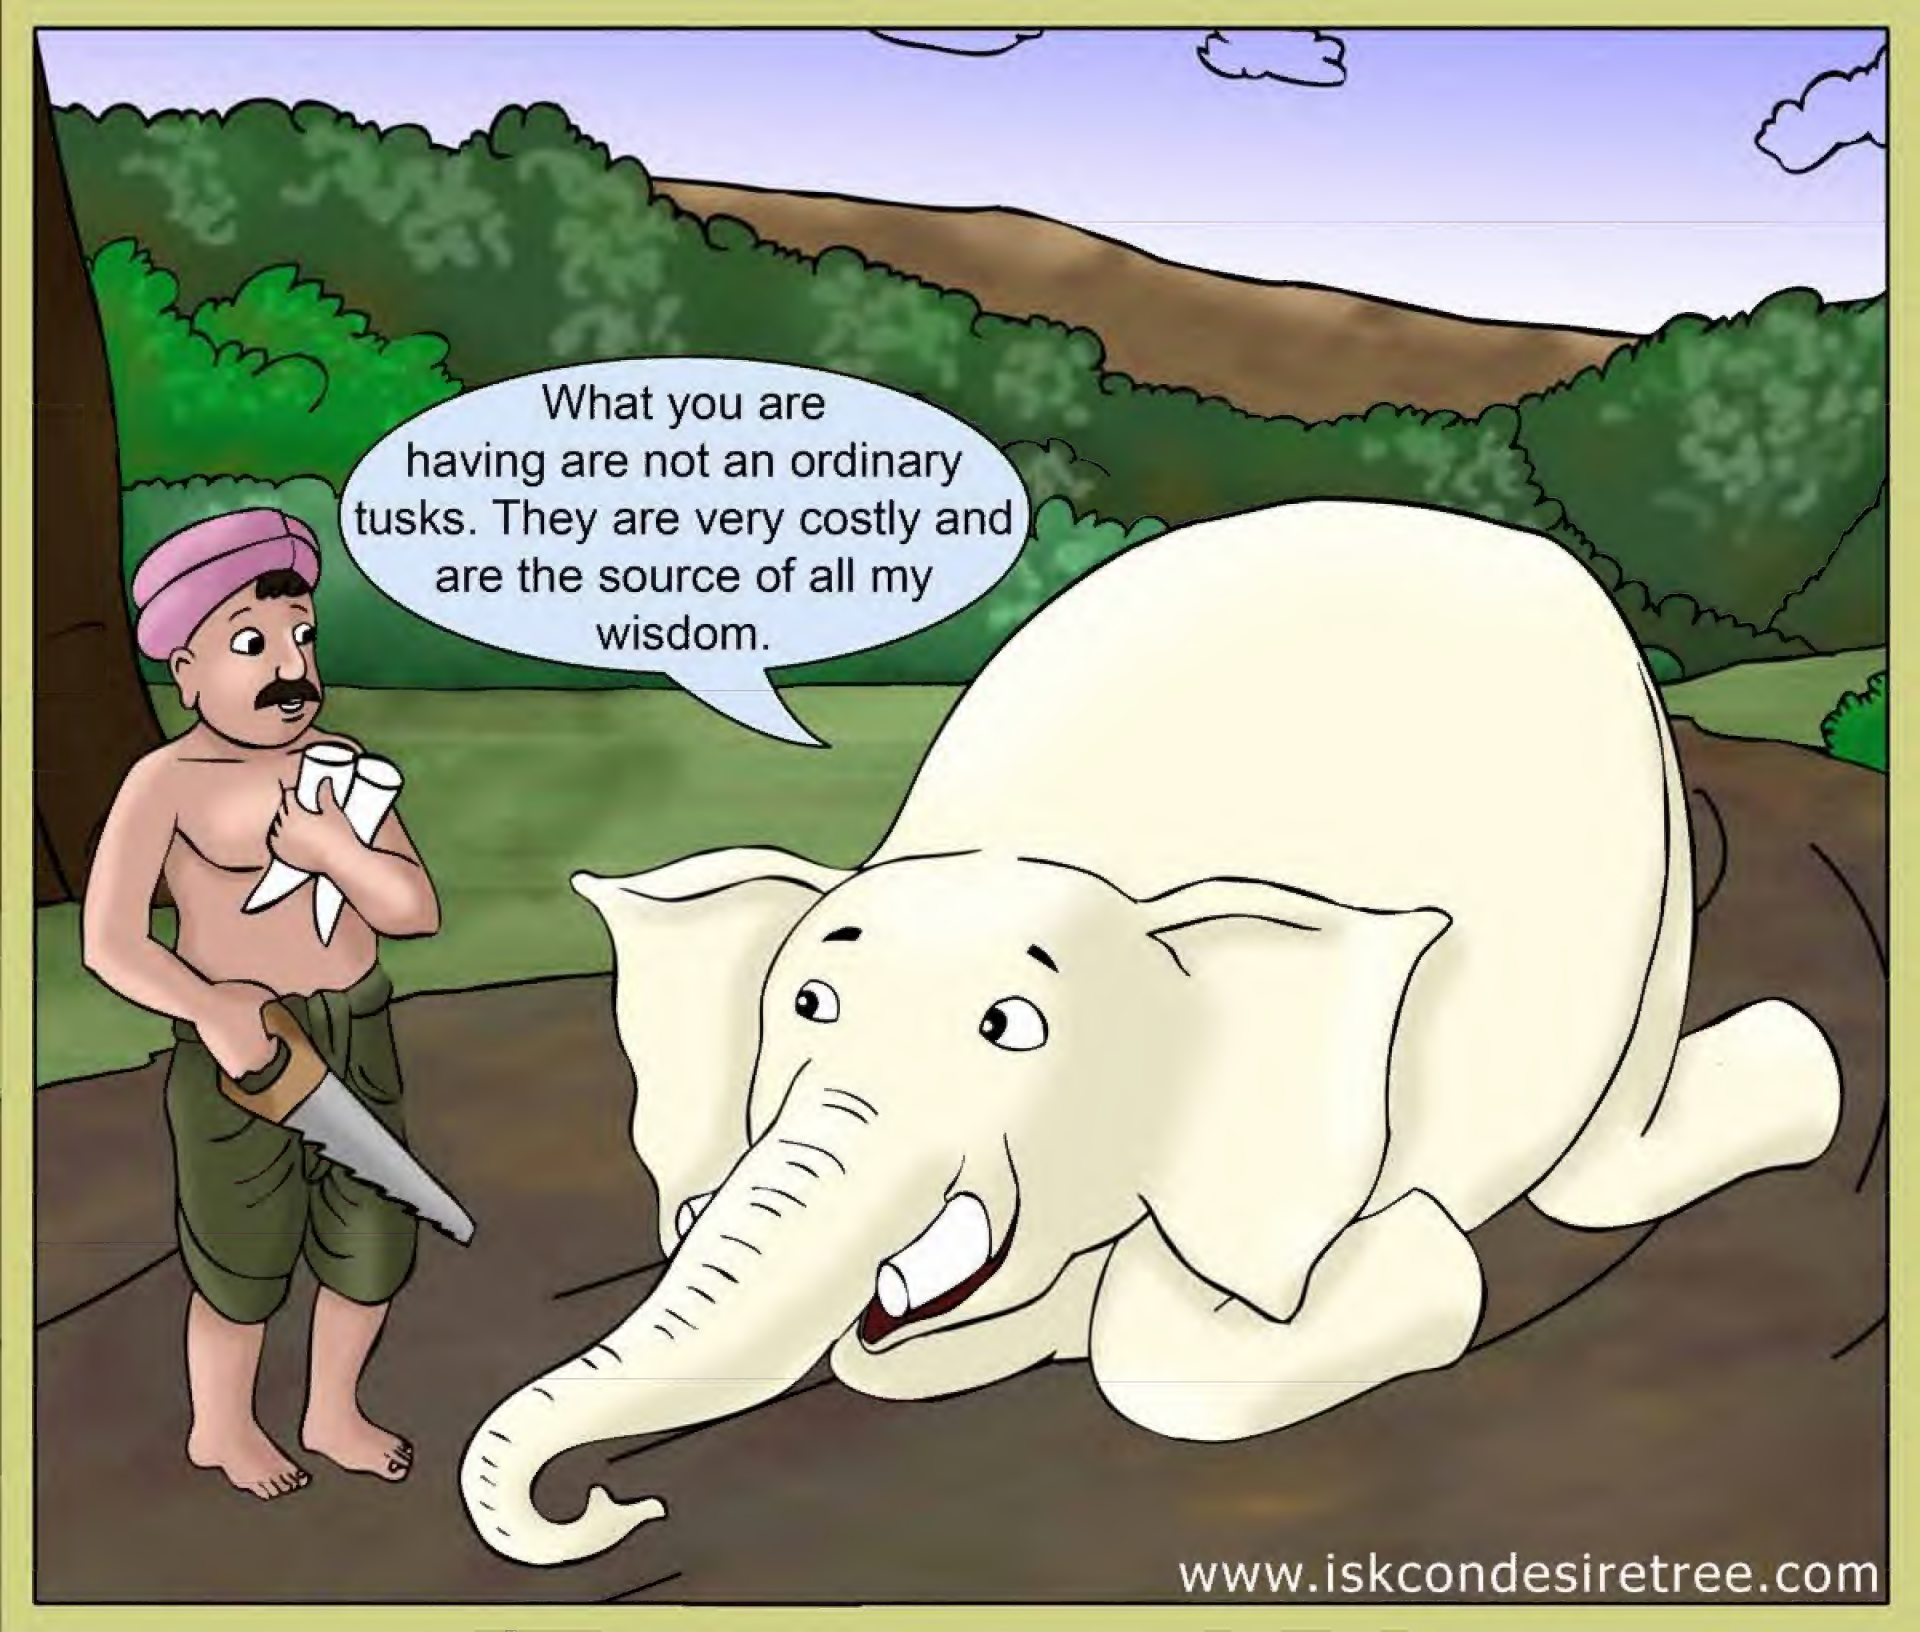

He went back to the jungle and went where the white elephant stayed.

I am up to my neck in debt. A piece of your tusk can save me. You will not loose anything by parting a small piece of your tusk but my family will be saved.

If that solves your miseries, I am willing to help.

What you are having are not an ordinary tusks. They are very costly and are the source of all my wisdom.

He rushed back to the city market and received a big sum of money for the tusks.

The villager solved his debt and also made a decent savings. However, his greed increased.

If I cut any more of the tusk, the elephant will suffer.. But I must not be sentimental.. I must get hold of those precious stumps of the tusks that I left behind.

He went back to the white elephant and made up a story.....

Thieves attacked my house and looted everything. I have lost everything. Please help me. I want those tusks.

Last time you cut off part of my tusks. Now if you pluck these balance stumps it will be very painful to me. However, if you think this is going to solve your problem, I am willing to sacrifice them and endure the pain.

The villager succeeded in convincing the elephant by his emotional appeal.

Ha! Ha!! Ha!!!
Now I will become richer!

AAAAAA.....

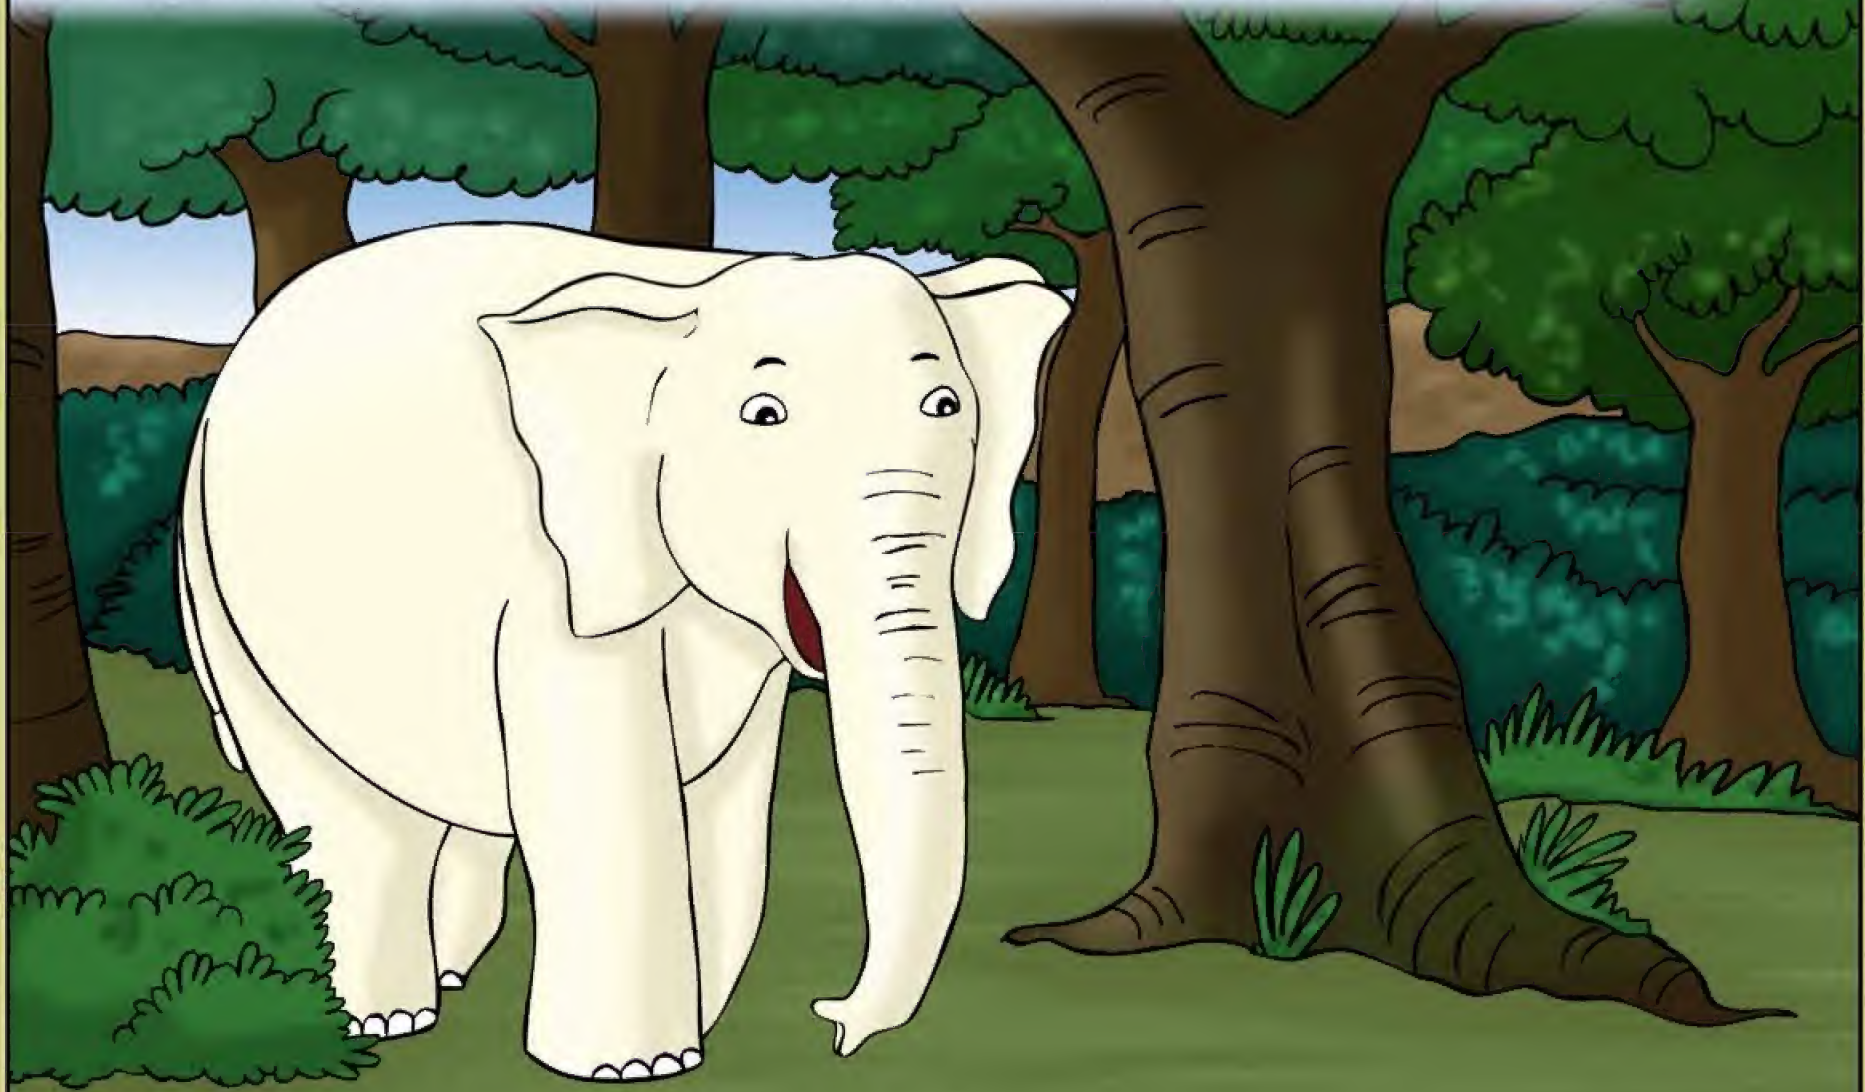

The greedy villager was lost in the thoughts of how he would enjoy the money he would get from selling the tusks. Lost in thoughts, he overlooked the path and fell into a deep valley and died.

As usual, the elephant continued to engaged in helping other living entities.

MORAL :

Keep doing good to others. If others exploit you, Krishna will punish them for their misdeeds.